@ABritSoutherner A2) Yes. You never know when something can happen whether it be minor/major. Something simple such as delayed or luggage can be covered, and also situations where your normal insurance would not be accepted at local doctors should any illness/accident happen.

Of course! I have insurance for everything else so why not travel, which is a major investment of my time and money

A2: Absolutely! As with everything we never realize how much we need it until we do. It's purchasing peace of mind. And it is about more than accidents and health with the number of substantial delays on the rise.
